

Flying saucer dream hints

1) No parts are distinguishable, as if their body is of white total light - there's no machinery or physical contents or body as such, yet a type of engine-or-converter swirls invisible surrounding atmospheric energies into and through them as their fuel and medium.

(A girl said she was taken up into one, that she could see the clouds and hills etc. below but not what she was in nor her own body, and yet was driven around in it like on a ride; that light took her up, and somehow made her into light during the trip.)

2) A very small one flew by me so close that it's roller-parts brushed my shoulder, setting off - from the slow calm watchful vibrations in me at that time - small, but much faster-vibration waves right through my bones. These rested upon the impure, external spots of chemicals upon my bones, eating them away.

I thereby postulate that they use a basic "healing vibration", which on contact also moves up-and-down the human body, until the brain unfolds, thus stimulating "higher" mental development and evolution.
