

from the "5-Part Spiritual dream" (the second part)

A grey-bearded man points out: A bright, red, clear circle in the sky, which i recognize at once as a "flying saucer". In the second view of it, it's a red horizontal oval, with a thin white slit across its middle reaching almost to its side end points.

In the third view, it's in another position in the sky, and is a bright red circle with a sharp white corona around it, and around both layers is a black circular area like dark space, which it takes with it as it moves.

Following this, are views from other areas of the sky and in other positions - sometimes it's moving and changing as it goes: the red turns to white, or yellow, or even black, where the corona and surrounding dark area are not seen; or it's a white or perhaps red prick in the distance; or its center is black and hence not seen. Sometimes it's shifting so that in appearance it mixes in camouflage with the stars or constellations; or while white, it shifts shape so that it's no longer round; or comes closer, or hovers, or recedes in space.

Each one is a messenger, which comes to give a message.

Because direct eye-contact is difficult for some people, for many it's clearest seen in a mirror (that is, indirectly).
