

Jan. 27, 1976.

Description:

On Jan. 27, 1976, between 11:36 PM and 12:35 AM, a clear night with a foggyish horizon, I followed a lit-up firstly red, then turned to white, circular UFO for about 2 kilometers (a mile) through 3 consecutive rough, deeply plowed fields in back of where I lived. But whenever I and my dog got a field closer, it got fainter and hopped about ½ a kilometer (500 yards) back to the next distant field; so I thought, it clearly didn't want me any closer.

When I then stood still to observe it, it too was stationary, and its pulsating light, which seemed to face away at an angle, erratically turned down or became strong again.

I was shown several variations, with short-lasting darkness between them, of how its parts could be lit in different ways and combinations: a) initially as a red and then white, erratically pulsating 3-forked object, with two outwards-slanting legs as its supporting base, with a mild side-beam from each, and a thin vertical round-ended cylinder as its top, then b) its top part unchanged but red, with the base now like the bottom half of a stably white semi-circle, then c) the base missing and its top divided into 3½ alternating red and black sections, then d) base missing and in place of the remaining top part, a pattern of 4 separated small red squares, touching only at their corners, then e) a red spot only, ending in f) the whole UFO clearly re-appearing as white, the top again cylindrical, but its base now horizontally rectangular. These variations replicated several of the light phenomena I'd seen on earlier dates.

As I then approached again, it disappeared, reappeared as a red circle in the next field, and finally disappeared again as I moved forward.

The next event was to the far right between me and the distant dark country road. I suddenly saw two red aligned circular lights blinking strongly and fast, perhaps 3-4 meters (10-13 feet) horizontally apart, on or in front of a vague oblong shape about 3 times that long. When I'd approached for about 1½ minutes, maybe 100 meters (110 yards), everything flew slowly to the right, slowing down further as the car-lights from a lone car passed on the road in back, and then disappeared behind some trees. (I estimated the distance between the circular lights from the car's length.)

Next, at 12 midnight as I crossed the field leading back toward where I'd last seen the original UFO, a sort of sideways-V, boomerang shaped, bright yet hazy-edged, almost transparent “light-body” lit up in flight nearby me, silently flew directly overhead, then quickly downwards before me and suddenly “went out”. I felt I'd been thoroughly photographed or mind-read, and was shocked at its precise closeness. That took one second.

Near the darkened road, about 1 and 3/4 kilometers (a mile) away, I now saw a rectangular-based and round-ended cylindrical topped UFO. As I approached that way for 7 minutes, it changed from shining red, to the top shining red and base shining white, to all of it shining white, then to all shining very bright red.

It flew slowly across the road and back. It then paused until one seldom car (its car-lights) had just passed by down the road, and then again slowly flew across the road and back at apparently just above the car's level.

It was next triangular-based with a rounded-cylindrical top and shining red, then most of its base shined white with part of its one side and the top still red, and then it all shined red again. It flew towards the right near the trees, and there was also a silent, darkish and therefore much less clear, cigar-like body about 6 times longer than the base of the UFO, moving together with and as a back-drop behind it. I wondered if the smaller UFO could fly in and out of it. Ending in those objects slowly flying together to behind the adjacent woods and out of my sight.

As I walked home mentally fatigued, a small white UFO, with a round-cornered triangular base and cylindrical top, was again in the original, far distant field. When I stopped to consider, a two-seconds' falling star crossed the sky far away. The UFO got brighter as I retreated, and was still faintly lit when I got home.

Total time about 1 hour.
